Important Notice - Uninsured Motorist Coverage - Missouri

About Uninsured Motorist Coverage

Uninsured motorist coverage will protect you in the event of an accident involving another driver who does not have valid liability insurance. In most states, it is a crime to be uninsured in this manner.

When an individual flees the scene of an accident without leaving sufficient information to identify him or herself, the individual is considered uninsured for the purposes of an uninsured motorist provision. Note, however, that a positive ID of the license plates in a hit and run accident will often be considered by insurance companies sufficient information to identify the negligent hit and run driver. Such identification will often lead to the denial of an uninsured motorist claim, as insurance companies will often litigate the claim, bringing in the registered owner of the vehicle with matching plates, even when that person denies involvement in the accident.

A stolen vehicle is uninsured from the time it has been stolen. A person who has been injured by a stolen vehicle may qualify for an uninsured claim.
